53rd Year — No. 32 PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, CALIFORNIA 93921 PRICE, 15 CENTS

Last year's best-of-show winner in the Concours d'Elegance competition was this magnificent 1931 Bugatti Type 41, owned by William Harrah of Reno. The Bugatti, one of only six in existence and the largest car in the world, will be on display at the Del Monte Lodge and will not enter competition. Shown above is Mrs. S. F. B. Morse of Pebble Beach who presented the trophy to Edward C. Catlett of Reno. This year Mr. Harrah entered a 1932 Marmon Convertible Coupe. He will also exhibit a 1931 Deusenberg Convertible Coupe with a long wheelbase. The Deusenberg is a one of a kind model from Mr. Harrah's fabulous collection.

Concours In It's 17th Year

Many of the world's most beautiful automobiles are beginning to arrive on the Peninsula to compete in the 17th Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance commencing at 11 a.m. Saturday, August 12.

Precisely 128 entries will gather at the Del Monte Lodge Saturday coming from the surrounding states of Oregon, Nevada and Arizona, as well as from Washington and Hawaii.

Topping the list of fine Concours d'Elegance are the Rolls-Royces to be displayed in three different classes. Of the 30 entered, the Rolls-Royce judged the best in the show will be awarded the "Lucius Beebe Memorial Trophy," donated by Jack Flaherty of British Motors of Monterey. Last year's trophy winner, the 1934 Rolls-Royce Phantom II owned by Robert A. Davies, will return to compete in the show.

The oldest car in the Concours d'Elegance is a 1939 Rolls-Royce Silver Ghost owned by Carl Anderson of Los Angeles.

Judges from our area are: Charles A. Chayne, Max L. Panzer, George L. Sclater-Booth and Fred Talbot, Jr., from Pebble Beach; Will Shaw from Carmel; and Kevin B. Walsh from Carmel Valley.

Entries from the Peninsula include: from Carmel, Randy Reinstedt, Ray Ramsey, R. F. McGraw, Philip C. Smith, Don E. Robison, and B. Gen. H. N. Lyon; from Pebble Beach are Alton H. Walker, Dr. O. J. Caselli, and J. van Amerongen; and from Carmel Meadows, Arthur B. Mullaly, who has three entries.

The entire proceeds from ticket sales and posters will benefit the Community Hospital.

Cultural Commission Appointments

Mr. Robert Evans and Capt. Frank Falge were the new Carmel Cultural Commissioners appointed by Mayor Stephen Grant to take the places of retiring Admiral (Ret) C. W. R. Fisher and Peter Dyer, at the Monday evening meeting.

Chairman Dr. James Gilman announced new committee appointments to include Capt. Falge and Ted Fehring along with himself on the Administration committee; James Pruitt, Donald Teague, and Falge on the Buildings and Grounds Committee; and Mrs. Patricia Faul, Teague, and Evans on the Program Planning Committee.

Dr. Melvin Steckler, who has been making objective recommendations in order to streamline city government, presented a chart of organization which removed financial and budget responsibilities from the administration committee and placed it under a Business Committee which would deal with physical matters, such as structures, maintenance and improvement, and introduced a Production Committee which would deal with programs, productions, uses, events, publicity, P/R, and advertising. The last two committees would work closely with Cole Weston, the manager of all events.

Mayor Grant addressed the commission in favor of the redistribution of responsibility. Mr. Evans suggested that the budget should be under the Commission as whole and intimated that the Business Committee would be overloaded. Cole Weston expressed the feeling that as things have been, there is a lack of follow-up on the things the Commission decides every month. He referred in particular to lack of help with the

Council Sets Tax Rate $1.23, 7c Decrease

The Carmel City Council met for a brief 14 minutes Saturday afternoon to adopt the 1967-68 city budget and to establish a new tax rate for city residents.

It will cost $903,297 to run the city this coming fiscal year, about $32,000 more than last year. The city councilmen did manage, however, to cut 7c off the tax rate which was set at $1.23 per $100 of assessed valuation of taxable property. The 7c decrease was due, at least, to the recent increase in revaluation of property within the County. The Council did try to do their share to compensate the residents for this hike in property reassessment, which jumped over 15c per $100 of assessed taxable property.

WEATHER

Low clouds, temperature Highs near 70, Lows near 52. Occasional peeks at the sun.

Council Handles Routine Business

Now that budget matters have been taken care of for the fiscal year 1967-68, the City Council will be able to settle down to other matters at hand.

The Council meeting last night was short two members . . . Councilmen Herb Blanks and Eben Whittlesey were both on leaves of absence. Since much of the business that appeared on the agenda has been in committee since budget plans began over two months ago, many items were posponed for discussion at a future meeting.

The Councilmen did pass a resolution to install stop signs at the intersection of 1st and Carpenter strets. They set a public hearing date of September 6 for consideration of providing prezoning of unincorporated territory and temporary zoning upon annexation, as well as considered an ordinance establishing minimum lot sizes for some Carmel property.

The Council adopted a resolution for establishing underground utilities for portions of San Carlos Street, eliminating overhead wires, poles, and associated structures.

The first reading was heard of a new ordinance which will give Mayor Steve Grant the power to call for an emergency curfew if the need ever arises.

DeJong New Symphony Leader Welcomed

With blue Carmel Bay in the background, John Gosling, Monterey County Symphony conductor, who will be musical director of the Erie Philharmonic, and his wife were bid an affectionate adieu at the Beach Club late Sunday afternoon by orchestra personnel, friends and board members of the Symphony Association. At the same time, those who had not yet had the opportunity to meet in-coming conductor, Jan DeJong and his wife Kit, and the new concertmaster Michael Rosenker and his wife Kazuko, recently arrived from Tokyo, were able to do so.

Little did Jan deJong (pronounced Yan deYong) think when he was stationed at Fort Ord twelve years ago that someday he would be living in the Monterey Peninsula Country Club area "in the quiet of all those trees within a ten minute walk to the beach with his eleven year old son, Peter. Up until that time he had divided his young adult time between the Netherlands and Colgate University where he was a philosophy and music major graduate in 1952 and where he returned from a year in the Netherlands working with USIS and the Netherlands Radio Conducting Seminar, as a faculty member to serve as director of glee clubs and the student-faculty orchestra.

Born in 1929 in the Dutch East Indies of Dutch parentage, deJong began his musical training at the age of seven studying to be a concert pianist. A scholarship to the Amsterdam Conservatory of Music was awarded him in 1946. There he started his early training in conducting under Anton van der Horst and met and watched all the great conductors of the day. He studied cello and violin there also.

In 1954 deJong won the coveted Antal Dorati Award in conducting in a nationwide competition which provided a year of private study with Dorati and the Minneapolis Symphony. He worked closely with Dorati, his job also being to monitor Dorati's recordings. He also did graduate work in Music at the University of Minneapolis and picked up timpani or kettledrums there.

This knowledge came in handy while he was at Fort Ord during which time he served as timpanist with the Monterey County Orchestra, and later when he attended the summer workshop for conductors at Asilomar for the American Symphony Orchestra League which draws musicians from all over the country, under the leadership of Dr. Richard Lert.

Service over he settled in Santa Barbara at the Academy of the West. Here with several pianos at his disposal, he directed opera, choral and orchestral programs. He helped found the Allied Arts Council and was its executive director until 1960 when he was invited to serve as conductor of the San Leandro Symphony Orchestra. His job there was to build an orchestra and an audience as John Gosling has done here.

When Col. C. H. Duval (who was at the reception), manager of the Monterey County Symphony, called him to come down, he was pleased to be considered for a post in this "lovely area which has a highly cultured audience with tastes for all the arts highly developed."

As for plans, he doesn't know yet. "Some music is tremendously familiar because it is tremendously good, while some unfamiliar music is very good. I hope to present a piece by Beethoven in such a way as to say 'have you ever fully appreciated this before?' In the same way I hope to be able to present some new music. We should not hear just one type of program."

Getting back to the Beach Club party looking out on the colorful sailboats tied up to the piers, practically all the board members from both the Peninsula and Salinas areas were there, beginning, of course, with Association president James Glaser who has lived here for twenty-five years, Mrs. Nihla Knight and Mrs. Robert Stanton who were pouring.

Mrs. Rosenker who appeared in an exquisite Japanese kimona seemed to fit the slightly hazy scene with its delicately etched pines.

John Upton, Bach Festival reviewer for the Pine Cone, was there. John has been playing the contrabass in the Monterey County Symphony for several years. Composer Charles Harlan whose "Suite for Percussion and Strings" had its world premiere here last year, said that his piece had been done in Las Vegas recently.

Vice-president Robert Stanton, treasurer Robert A. Work and Mrs. Work, the John Farrs, the Allman Cooks, Mrs. Marjorie Oren, Mrs. F. K. Ringland, Guild president for two years, the Philip C. Smiths, Mrs. Rody Holt, (we can't begin to mention all the names) were among the more than 100 guests to share the appreciation expressed by president Glaser when he presented John Gosling with a going away present from the association.

Tryouts At Circle Theatre

With the summer season of repertory at Carmel's Circle Theatre in Carmel ending Labor Day week-end, Director Norman McPhee announces auditions for the first autumn prouction, Bernard Shaw's colorful and highly romantic "Arms and the Man."

Two auditions will be held in the Community Theater headquarters in Sunset Center. The auditions will be held on Friday evening, 7 to 9 p.m. and on Sunday afternoon, 3 to 5 o'clock. The try outs, open to all would-be actors and actresses from all parts of the peninsula, will be conducted by Director McPhee.

One of Shaw's earliest and happiest plays, "Arms and the Man" involves light-hearted and dashing military officers in search of love rather than battle.

Characters include five men and three women: the romantic lead, "Sergius Saranoff" young and handsome; his two companions (20 to 30 years of age); and the high ranking officer (50 to 60 years old), father of the beautiful "Raina". There is also a man servant.

The three woman include the young and beautiful lead, (20 to 30 years old); her socially ambitious effusive mother and a young maid-servant.

"Arms and the Man" is scheduled to open in mid-September and to run Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings.

The Circle Theater is the Community Theater of Monterey Peninsula. It is a non-profit organization supported by subscriptions and voluntary contributions.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Reetz

Joan Willicomb Weds Randall Reetz

The wedding of Joan Willicombe and Randall Reetz was solemnized on Monday at the Erdman Memorial Chapel at Robert Louis Stevenson School, the Reverend C. E. Wilson officiating. Joan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bissantz of Carmel and Randall the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Reetz of North Barrington, Illinois.

The aisle by which Joan was led to the altar by her father was lined by massive sprays of magnolia branches and agapanthus. Daisies and chrysanthemums decorated the altar.

Joan chose to be married in a white coat dress of silk and wool. She wore a Dior rose with full shoulder length veil and carried a bridal bouquet of white roses and stephanotis.

Her only attendant was Mrs. Anne Mong who wore an azure dress and who carried a bouquet of white and blue cornflowers. Randall's brother, Thomas Reetz of Bedford, New York, served as his best man, and Randolph Vahan of Beverly Hills as an usher.

The bride's mother wore a green chiffon print and the bridegroom's mother a celadon green coat dress, both with matching hats.

The small wedding was followed by a reception at the Bissantz home on Carmel Point.

The two met at Stanford where they were graduate students. Miss Willicombe who was a 1961 Carmel High School graduate, received her degree in 1965 and M. A. in 1966. Her husband, a Dartmouth graduate, earned his law degree and the Bancroft Whitney Award for outstanding legal scholarship in 1966.

The young couple is on a honeymoon trip in the Northwest, after which they will drive to Colorado where Joan will continue her work as a counselor at the University of Colorado, and Randall will be a clerk of the Colorado Supreme Court. They will make their home in Boulder, Colorado.

Pine Needles ...

From Madrid to Ireland

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Cooley returned recently from a trip abroad in which they divided their time between the hot, dry northern part of Spain and the chilly, misty British Isles. After several days in London and its surrounding points of interest, they spent the rest of their two months driving through the Irish countryside from Dublin where they rented a car.

Although it rained frequently, "that's what makes Ireland so green and lovely," remarked Mrs. Cooley. Mr. Cooley particularly liked the area around Baldurran, a summering place, on the northwest coast near Donegal. She liked best the Killarney Lakes, Bantry Bay and other parts of southwest Ireland.

The Cooleys came to Carmel about seven years ago from Washington, D.C. They stopped off on the East coast to visit children and grandchildren both going and coming.

In as much as Mrs. Turner and Miss Hefner taught in Nebraska years ago, there was considerable catching up to do. Mr. Turner has lived in Carmel since he was three, his grandparents having been among the first settlers.

Many friends drove up from Rome to witness the wedding.

The bride used to be active in many charitable and social activities on the Peninsula and was a member of the Church of the Round.

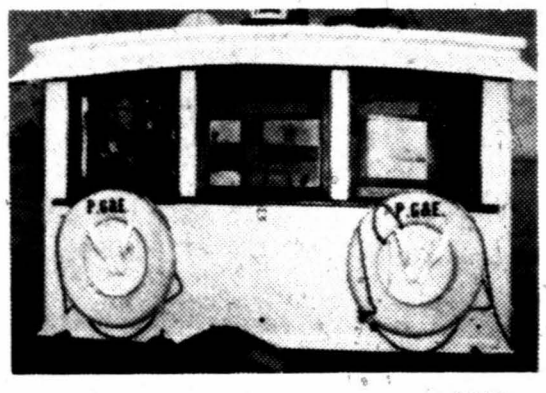
large variety of water plants

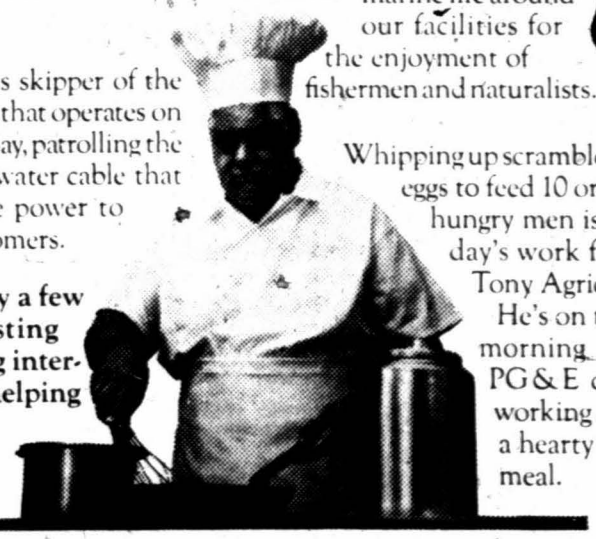
What are a tug skipper, marine biologist and camp cook doing at PG&E?



"Frogman" Jim Adams, PG&E marine biologist, and our engineers work closely with the State Department of Fish & Game and other interested groups during the planning and construction of new power plants.

His job is to insure the preservation of marine life around our facilities for the enjoyment of fishermen and naturalists.

Hank Price is skipper of the PG&E tugboat that operates on San Francisco Bay, patrolling the miles of underwater cable that supply reliable power to our many customers.



Whipping up scrambled eggs to feed 10 or 15 hungry men is just part of a day's work for camp cook Tony Agricola.

He's on the go from 4 in the morning making sure that PG&E construction crews working in isolated areas get a hearty he-man's diet every meal.

These are only a few of the interesting people – doing interesting jobs – helping PG&E serve you better.

WATER ON THE HORIZON

By Sterling Mummert

In addition to establishment of authority upon Carmel River problems and potentials the current U. S. Army Engineer's report has a unique result: interest in flood facets has been heightened at the summer low level stage. To the many comments issued by the press and other outlets, I would have a few ideas of my own appear in the projection bin.

Attention has again been directed toward the Klondike Dam site for a means to lessen dangers from high waters. A "multiple purpose dam" to provide flood control, domestic water storage, and recreation has been put under consideration. A complete one hundred percent utility to fill every need is envisioned for the taxpayers and beneficiaries.

Multiple Stage

A mutiple stage retainer for the multiple use envisioned might suit the unique demands and character of Carmel Valley. Instead of having a high rise, high cost, finished dam it might be feasible to build it in line with immediate needs; that is, build a flood control dam first and then add lifts for water storage and canoes, row boats and other delightful means to improve the general health level of our youth.

The initial flood control rise would have to be built large enough, strong enough and deep enough to allow for the ultimate structure, a method which will not conform to usual procedures. However, it should be noted that the Army Engineers saw fit to make a flood plain survey first before bath water, lawn sprinkling, swimming and other needs were tabulated. Therefore, if a flood control dam is built first it would be on schedule with plans formed thus far.

At this juncture I feel that a paragraph of praise for those stalwarts of Carmel Valley who insisted upon aesthetic values along the stream course be preserved (or developed) should be given herewith. During its bout with the Carmel River Watershed and residents involved, the Soil Conservation Service personnel, including myself, went through a conversion stage to meet the aims of this determined beauty slanted minority.

To have a conversion of conventional engineering thinking from a fully to a partially completed dam may take additional exertion on the part of our unhurried residents.

(Former Soil Conservationist, Sterling D. Mummert, representing and working for the CVSCD (Carmel Valley Soil Conservation District,) served for eight years as CV River expert in getting about ten miles of the river channel cleared.)

MY MOST INTERESTING TRIP

Seeing England by Bicycle

By Mrs. Sterling Mummert

I was fifty-five and getting fat.

"Starve!" said my doctor.

"I can't," said I.

"Then exercise," he said, fixing me with an eagle eye.

I cringed and went to my travel agent for a ticket to Amsterdam. If I must exercise I'd do it in a cool place on a bicycle. None of those TV gymnastics on the floor for me!

Holland, of course, is every good cyclist's dream. But I am not a good cyclist, with not having done much of it since I was fourteen and now suffering with the usual amount of middle - aged nerves.

However, I was determined to ride in Amsterdam if only for a practice run. I found a small second-hand shop and rented one for an hour. Carefully I wheeled it to what I thought was a nice smooth, quiet street along side of a canal. I skimmed along nicely, proud to think how well my legs remembered their function, when whoops! around a corner a car would swish. The Dutch don't seem to have stop signs at their street corners and see no necessity for slowing down. They'd veer over to the left where I was pedaling and I with a yelp would just keep from going into the canal.

However, I persevered for an hour and succeeded in finding my way back to the grinning boy in the store without getting wet. He was about ten years old and spoke perfect English. Better than many Pennsylvania Dutch!

I parted reluctantly from Amsterdam with its lovely Old Masters, inexpensive opera, good food and friendly, HONEST people and travelled first class to the Hoek.

Since I had some friends in Bournemouth I decided to go there rather than shop around London for a cheap bicycle. Am glad I did as I found an excellent lady's bike in a second hand shop quite close to where my friends lived.

Well, I cycled all around Bournemouth and the local seaside towns in the vicinity and enjoyed the parks, old castles, etc. The flower gardens were particularly colorful that year, and on Sunday afternoon the gardens were filled with merry people greeting their friends. The British are supposed to be cold and unemotional. But just watch them on a holiday outing or at a football game! The Americans seem frigid and painfully inhibited in comparison.

One day I decided to "do" Winchester. I cycled to the station, and took my bike on the train with me. It is 35 miles from Bournemouth to Winchester and younger folk than I might enjoy cycling it, perhaps staying overnight in Brockenhurst or Lyndhurst in the old, old, New Forest. Winchester is celebrated chiefly for being the old capital of Wessex where the old Saxon kings reigned while London was still a sleepy little village. About two miles south on the Southhamptbn Road (Old Roman Road) there is the old church of St. Cross with its Almshouse founded by Bishop Henri de Blois in 1136 to give free bread and ale to the poor and homeless travelers. I think the custom was kept up until the Second World War.

The next day I was a little stiff from all my cycling around Winchester so I joined a group which was going to Salisbury by bus. Was glad I did as the cathedral there was a joy to behold and the Bishops' gardens were in full bloom. There is also a chapel which is built entirely of stones that were taken from the old town of the Romans. Pedaling around Christchurch the next day was easy so I did a little shopping in the second hand shops as well. I bought a silver egg tray complete with four egg cups for twenty shillings or three dollars. Christchurch is noted chiefly for its old Roman Priory and view from a 15th century tower.

I now decided that the best way to see Dorset, Devon and perhaps even Cornwall would be to establish some headquarters in Exeter and then take side-trips in all directions from there. Exeter is a city of contrasts, just like Mexico, with the old and the new practically rubbing shoulders with each other. It was senselessly bombed during the war. Consequently you may walk a hundred yards or so from viewing the old 14th century Gothic Cathedral with its two Roman towers (the only ones in Britain), or some Renaissance houses built by wealthy woolmerchants in the 17th century and find yourself looking at an up-to-date modernistic office building or department store.

I cycled all around the city and out to the little village of Newton - St - Cyre where there was an old inn with a real thatched roof where I had tea and cakes with real Devonshire cream (clotted cream fresh from the cow) for my tarts.

The next day I took the train to Bideford. This is a nice little town with some old limestone cottages overlooking the estuary with its boats grounded in the sand at low tide. I then took on the long uphill grind to Clovelly. It was nine miles. Seven of them uphill. It was warm. About the fifth mile my tongue was out thirsting for some nice cold beer or coke, but there isn't an inn in sight. Nothing but wheat fields. Those nine miles took me three hours as I was walking most of the way. Going back took one and a half and I coasted most of the time and as usual, just caught my return train in the nick of time.

I could have joyfully stayed around Exeter for another couple of weeks but unfortunately my brother was insisting that I must visit St-Leonard's-on-Sea in Sussex, so I reluctantly took my departure. Again I went up to London to catch a train for Sussex.

St. Leonards is a nice little sea-side resort within easy cycling distance of Hastings and Rye. Both are old towns just teeming with history but not given much space in the

by JOHN UPTON

July 27 Evening Concert

The standard of excellence throughout the past six days of this Bach Festival has been so high that we wish we had not heard Thursday evening's concert at Sunset. It was a conscientious performance of Handel's massive oratorio "Saul," calling for a huge cast and full orchestra; and it was a monumental bore.

Not that it was badly done; on the contrary, every singer and musician was clearly doing his best to endow the oratorio with some spark of life. It was, however, all uphill. Handel, compared to Bach and Carissimi and Telemann, is unmelodic and unimaginative, and seems at a loss to finish a musical idea once he has begun it. His themes are so repetitious that they seemed to bore the performers as well as the audience. This made the musicians sound tired and the singers seem to be thinking of something else.

On the whole, the recitatives were the worst — partly because of a clumsy translation that gave the singers knotty mouthfuls of syllables that destroyed any beauty that may have resided in the original version. One notable exception was soprano Nancy Trethaway's "Fell rage and black despair," an aria that emerged in a lovely and melodic way from a dull context.

We do not know how this work came to be selected for performance in the Festival; apparently it is highly regarded in some circles. It is our suggestion that in the future any choral work of Handel be offered early in the series, so that he is not thrown in such a bad light by following his betters.

Soloists Thursday (stanch and talented every one) included soprano Francesca Howe, tenor Henry Nason, baritone Douglas Lawrence, and basses Thomas Paul and Robert Oliver. It was sad to see such talent wasted on such bad material.

Applause at the first intermission was sparse and scattered; at the conclusion of the program the audience evinced much greater enthusiasm. I think this was because all of us love and respect Conductor Salgo, and could not let such a tremendous effort, no matter how ill-advised, go unrecognized.

July 28 Morning Recital

This recital was amusing and delightful. Tenor James Schwabacher (who warmed our hearts as the Evangelist in Sunday's St. John Passion) appeared to give some witty program notes and to sing a pair of songs by David Pohle and Thomas Arne. The first, properly a "Spiritual Concerto," was an inventive and moving work in several sections with a charming and romantic quality that demanded rather complex melodic elaborations on a single syllable — often for several bars — which called for masterful breath control and an impeccable sense of intonation. Mr. Schwabacher came through in fine style.

The Arne cantata, "The Morning," was light-hearted and charming, filled with the sounds of nightingales and shepherd's pipes. As always, Mr. Schwabacher did full justice to his material, and sang with style and grace. In Carissimi's Duet for Two Tenors, he was joined by James Hull, and again we were entranced.

Edward Haug, baroque trumpeter, was surprisingly agile in Torelli's Concerto for Baroque Trumpet, where he performed with distinction on an apparently impossible instrument—a spidery-looking affair with no valves and several yards of slender brass tubing. We were mystified by his ability to execute chromatic intervals by means of lip pressure alone. He turned a fiery red in the process, but returned to a normal color a few moments later.

Shirley Love, who has a rich, warm voice, gave us the alto cantata "Ah, del celebre confin," by Padre Jose Pradas. There is a lovely simplicity to this short work which Miss Love delivered in a thoughtful and lyrical way. Hers is an exceptional talent that has been a great ornament to this Festival.

Conductor Salgo was present to lead the orchestra in the Concerto for Baroque Trumpet, while some of his players provided backgrounds for the vocalists.

July 29 Morning Recital

Saturday's recital at All Saint's Parish Hall was the last in this splendid series. (The evening performances of July 28, 29, and 30 were repeats of earlier concerts). In it, our attention was drawn to the talents of soprano Margot Power and flautist Sherry Wachsmuth.

Miss Power appeared to warm our hearts with two Bach arias: "Seufzer, Traenen," from Cantata 21, and "Was Gott tut," from Cantata 100. She has a very large and full voice, which is rich even in the upper reaches; in addition, she sings as though she were an instrument — something like the cello in the upper register. In the first of these arias, she was all tenderness and warmth, while in the second she displayed all the nimbleness and precision one could ask for. This is complex music for a singer, and Miss Power handled it with great aplomb.

Miss Wachsmuth, on flute, did some admirable things behind Miss Power's singing in "Was Gott tut." In places, this work seems almost a duet for flute and voice. Harpsichordist Kenneth Ahrens and cellist Paula Skolnick trod softly in the background.

For David Abel, this was the last of his series of unaccompanied Partitas and Sonatas for violin. We shall always remember his clean and accurate playing of these display pieces, of which the last were the Sonata No. 3 in C Major and the Partita No. 3 in E Major. He was particularly fine in the latter, where he played in his usual effortless way some extremely difficult passages where the bow must catch a descending voice in the lower register while sustaining a relentless series of apreggios above.

Summary

This has been a Bach Festival to remember, thanks to Conductor Sandor Salgo and a dedicated troupe of artists. We cannot see how he can surpass himself; but next year he probably will.

John O'Shea's One Man Show in Final Week

A one man showing of the works of John O'Shea is in its final week at The Laky Galleries, Ltd.

John O'Shea was acclaimed by critics as "one of the soundest painters who ever worked on the Monterey Peninsula." He won widespread recognition and his works hang in many permanent collections, including the Palace of the Legion of Honor, the San Francisco Museum of Art, the Bohemian Club, and the Museum of Modern Art in Dublin, Ireland.

John O'Shea effortlessly captured the inner life and vitality of whatever he painted. His art, whether oil, watercolor or charcoal, is variety; for it is the realization that every subject expresses a unique character. O'Shea's magnificence of color and undeniable dexterity reveal a vigorous and intense individuality, courageous in its expression.

The most fitting description of the artist we find in the autobiography of his close friend, the great Irish poet, Ella Young: "John O'Shea has a passionate sympathy with the will of a tree to thrust skyward, the will of a cliff to endure. He has caught on his canvas the weight of a bough, the impatient frustrated siege of the sea; the very muscle and texture of rocks. John O'Shea comes from a part of Ireland that I know well. He has the pride of a man who can count his ancestors back for a thousand years; this proud, untamed California enthralls him."

The one man show will be continuing through August 13th.

The Laky Galleries, Ltd., is located on San Carlos between 5th and 6th, and is open from 11:00 to 5:00 each week day, and from 1:00 to 5:00 on Sundays.

Interesting Trip

travel books because of their smallness. I took a bus to Canterbury which was well worth seeing with it's lovely cathedral even though it was "early closing day" which meant no window shopping.

Too soon I had to go back to London to visit relatives and friends. In London I cycled all the way from Victoria Station to Liverpool stopping on the Embankment to visit the Ttate Gallery, a "must" for art lovers. The embankment is almost like the West side drive in New York City when it comes to traffic and I can only be grateful to the good English lorry and bus-drivers that I ever made it alive.

Well it was a very nice trip. I lost exactly two pounds!

The Complete Gardener

. . . a regular diet of information having to do with plants

This is the week of the Monterey County Fair . . . always a great treat for those who appreciate a combination of Nature's bounties and man's talents. Those who have attended in the past know that a magnificent flower show is to be expected. But one is not always prepared for the surprises that are in store in this department. We highly recommend the patio exhibits, outside the Horticulture Building, if which both amateurs and professionals compete for ribbons and cash. There is also something special for readers of this column. Somewhere on the Midway there's a booth marked "Garden Clinic." Just step up and say "Complete Gardener" . . . see what happens.

From Marina: "How much topsoil should I order to cover about 1400 sq. ft. three inches deep?" Approximately 13 yards.

From Gonzales: "When is the best time to slip geraniums?" Cuttings made now, from new growth, can be rooted for next year's gloom. Make a sharp cut, at least 4 inches long, of a fresh stem tip with no buds. Clip off all but a few of the top leaves (do not pull them off). Mix sand and peat, or use a packaged fortified potting soil, and fill a large clay pot. Insert the cuttings, burying most of the stem but none of the leaves. Firm the soil around them and place the pot where the sun strikes it most of the day. Do not allow the rooting medium to dry out, nor should it get soggy. Keep out of the wind, but where there is good air circulation. Watch for new top growth in about 4 weeks. At 5 weeks the roots should be at least ½-inch long and the cuttings can be repotted. If a commercial potting soil is used no feeding will be necessary until late October, when a little 0-10-10 can be applied. Mature gernaiums bloom better if kept somewhat on the dry side. Next week we'll toss out another assortment of unrelated statistics.

Be on guard against youngsters darting out from behind parked cars or racing across the street in the middle of a block.

MEDICARE

by Raymond S. MacDonald

Q. How can we elderly people who are on Medicare help prevent delays in the processing of our Medicare insurance claims?

A. If you are getting ready to file your first claim for payment of doctor bills and other expenses covered by your medical insurance, begin by consulting your Medicare Handbook. Every beneficiary was mailed a Handbook: however, if yours has been lost or misplaced, your local Social Security Office will gadly send you another. The Handbook not only describes what services are reimbursable, but also tells you how to figure the $50 deductible and explains the two methods of claiming pay-payment.

You can get a special folder from your Social Security Office which will help you keep track of your Medicare medical expenses. Write and ask for Folder OASI-881C. If you are a Medicare beneficiary about to send in your first claim for reimbursement of doctor's bills you have paid, a visit to your nearest Social Security Office may help assure that your claim will be paid as promptly as possible. Many beneficiaries have not received payment for doctor bills as quicky as they might have, because they have left off some simple but important bit of information from their Request for Payment Form. Ask for Folder OASI-881C, "Record of Medical Expenses."

Actor Sells Pine Cone

"Do you think he looks like a girl?"

The anxious questioner, David Sheppard, 10, one of the Pine Cone's star newspaper salesmen, pointed to his cousin Brett Manley.

The Pine Cone's Lady-at-the-Front-Desk answered a careful "No" and qualified it, "His hair is a little long" — it just cleared his ear lobes — "but lots of bigger boys wear theirs even longer."

"There's a good reason," declared David. "He's Daniel Boone's son on TV."

David's pretty mother, Mrs. Joy Sheppard, confirmed that Brett is stand-in for Darby Hinton, "Israel" on the weekly filmed television show starring Fess Parker. This way, she said, he is able to help his mother, Mrs. Audrey Manley, Mrs. Sheppard's sister.

The two blond boys had first come in together on a Wednesday to "sign up" to sell papers the next day, which they continued to do each of the three Thursdays of Brett's visit from Van Nuys.

The nine-year-od actor proved to be an outstanding salesman in spite of some rebuffs—of greater concern to David than to Brett — which he described without rancor:

"One man told me he only bought the Pine Cone from boys, and another one, when I told him I wore my hair long because I was on TV, said he didn't believe me."

Daniel Boone's TV son and the Pine Cone's ace salesman

Knowing that the boy earns nearly $40 a day while working on the show, staff members were amused to see him sitting on the floor of the Pine Cone office counting his sales profits—seven cents for each paper selling for 15 cents.

Brett's own description of his TV job: "Darby does the speaking and close-ups, and I do the distance shots, because we can work only eight hours a day. We're just like twins — we even have the same freckles."

Asked if they got on well, he said, "Oh yes, we're blood brothers."

Did he think acting hard work?

"Oh, no, it's real fun!"—a remark he also applied to selling Pine Cones. "The hard part is on location when we have our three hours of lessons in a hard, hot truck. But I like the teacher."

How did he get started? A friend of his father, Bob Manley, spotted him in a railroad station two years ago, Brett said. "I was dressed in cowboy clothes, running with some other kids yelling, 'Bang! Bang! You're dead!'—you know, like you do when you're younger."

Poised and knowledgeable, Brett still did not seem self-conscious or overly adult in making remarks like, "It all depends on Central Casting. If they like you, you get parts."

David is now, in turn, visiting Brett. "They're devoted," Mrs. Sheppard said. "That's why they like to dress alike."

"But we'll be back in a couple of weeks to sell more Pine Cones," the two cousins promised.

Where But Carmel . . .

During a heavy rain, would the owner of one of the largest groceries escort each customer to her car under an umbrella, and return for a "loaner" for a lady whose car top was leaking?

PARTY PLANS . . .

by Phyllis Jervey

"Lunching in Elegance"

Spectators at this weekend's Concours d'Elegance will probably picnic from hampers in today's cars en route to view rejuvenated antique automobiles at Pebble Beach.

We have planned a sophisticated pique-nique artfully served on terrace or patio, even in a formal dining room. Concours guests will enjoy a fete-champetre glass-topped table setting. Sunny yellow pottery plates with lime soup bowls, crimson goblets and wine glasses complement the enchanting centerpiece of fresh limes and lemons with shiny leaves and green and muscat grapes.

The cool menu carries out the colors with cream of pea or tomato bouillon served hot for the first course. Then comes wine poached trout sauced with green mayonnaise presented chilled with fresh asparagus en vinaigrette. Avocado halves filled with a special sour cream dressing and bright strawberries accent this chic pre-concours luncheon. A truly elegant dessert is the frosted cheese mold which tunes this exquisite party to modern ways since everything is in readiness and no time is lost in heading where the action is.

Wine has a special talent for improving the flavor of fish. It modifies some types and accents others. Trout, mild and succulent, when served cold needs plenty of seasoning to make it distinctive. So the trout, fresh or frozen, is first poached in a wine and herb broth, then cooled, boned and skinned.

Wine Poached Trout

Two cups dry white dinner wine; 2 cups canned chicken broth; ¼ tsp. dried or fresh dill; 1½ tsps. seasoned salt; 4 thin slices onion; several sprigs fresh mint and parsley; 1½ tbsps. wine vinegar; 6 medium size trout, heads removed; watercress; fresh strawberries and lemon garnish; avocado halves; green mayonnaise or sour cream dressing.

Measure wine, broth, dill, salt, onion, mint, parsley and vinegar into pan large enough to hold trout. Bring to a slow boil and simmer 5 minutes. Place trout in stock and poach gently 5 minutes or just until fish flakes easily. Thaw frozen fish first. Let trout cool in liquid. Remove skin from fish and remove center bones without destroying shape. Take out onion, mint and parsley from poaching liquid and chill fish in this. Serve a whole trout on bed of watercress per person with strawberries and lemon garnish. Serves 6.

Green Mayonnaise

Mince tender spinach leaves, chives, green onion tops, parsley together, add with capers and lemon juice to homemade or commercial mayonnaise.

Sour Cream Dressing

Soften 1 tsp. plain gelatin in ¼ cup dry white dinner wine; dissolve by placing over hot water. Cut small avocados in halves; remove seeds and skin. Blend gelatin mixture with 1 cup sour cream, 2 tbsps. finely chopped green onion, 2 tbsps. lemon juice and salt to taste. Fill each avocado half with some of the dressing; sprinkle with paprika. Chill.

Frosted Cheese Mold

One cup milk; 2 envs. (2 tbsps.) unflavored gelatin; 2 12-oz. cartons (3 cups) cream style cottage cheese; ½ cup crumbled bleu cheese; 1 6-oz. can frozen limeade concentrate, thawed; ½ cup broken pecans, toasted and salted; 6 drops green food coloring; 1 cup double cream, whipped.

Pour milk into large saucepan. Sprinkle gelatin over milk to soften. Place over low heat and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat. Beat cottage and bleu cheese together until well blended; stir into gelatin mixture. Add limeade concentrate, pecans and food coloring. Fold in whipped cream. Turn into 6 cup ring mold and chill until firm. Unmold on serving plates; fill center with melon balls and orange sections or canned mandarin sections. Garnish with frosted grapes and fresh mint leaves. Pass lime wedges. To frost grapes, brush them with slightly beaten egg white or fruit juice. Sprinkle with sugar. Let dry on rack.

If a more simple dessert is in order, just serve sliced cranshaw, honeydew or casaba melon and pass creme de menthe and cointreau for each to pour some on individual portions.

Wine poached trout, chilled and served with strawberries, mint and sour cream dressing, all enhanced by a glass of dry white wine, makes an enchanting summer meal.

A light flavorful wine such as Rhine, Sauterne or Chablis accompanies this luncheon par excellence. Bakery bought brioches and/or croissants (or the frozen variety) provide an elegant and easy bread and do not require butter. Demitasses, then off to the concours!

REPORTS FROM RLS

By Chandler Meloy

Math Seminar for Monterey Region

The noted math professor, Father Stanley J. Bazuszke of Boston College, will be leading a special Math Seminar for ten days on the Stevenson Campus.

Open to teachers of Math in the Monterey Region, it has been held in past years at MPC, Asilomar, and Seaside High School among others. Some 25 top teachers will attend this important conference which will be emphasizing the "new" math that is now being taught in most American high schools.

Acting as host for the Stevenson School, and representing Headmaster Ricklefs, is Adm. Harold Pullen, head of the Math Department at R.L.S. Public and private school teachers are attending the seminar which is valued at 3 units of college credit.

This is the sixth major program on the Stevenson campus this summer (Two Hidden Valley Music Seminars, one program of "Thinking and Writing," one of Economics in Modern Business, and one "regular" summer session, plus the famous Vagabond Trip to Yosemite.) A verrrrrrry busy summer for all, and the most extensive in the school's history.

CHAPEL CONCERTS EVERY SUNDAY NIGHT: Every Sunday night this month, at 8:00 p.m., the Hidden Valley Candlelight Concerts will be presented to the public and friends of the school. Coffee is served at 7:30 p.m. and the programs are devoted to the classics. This second series includes Chamber Music instead of the full orchestra. A most rewarding evening as these bright young people from throughout California learn the classics with such beauty and grace.

Graduation concert and banquet will be held Friday, September 1st, at 6:00 p.m. You may make reservations any time this month if you would like to attend the banquet by calling Hidden Valley Music Seminar at 624-1557 or 624-1558.

paws for comment

by Brandy and Pheemy
as told by Andre Hope

Our mistress has just called us in from standing guard over the yard turtle to write this column. It's disgusting, eats bananas. We eat everything we can find. She tells us this is not a good idea. There are too many people who say, fatuously, "Our animals eat exactly what we eat!" Well, they shouldn't. We don't have human insides and besides, some humans don't eat what they should either. Good commercial pet foods recommended by your veterinarian or pet shop owner are the best thing. We will say, though, that some of the uncanned unrefrigerated foods may be too high in sugar and preservatives. Pheemy gets into the vegetable cooler and demolishes too many green onions. He comes out looking like he had a mint - colored moustache! Thank goodness there are breath controls for animals. So, Brandy eats ice cubes and they give him tummy cramps! (writer's note: And they both crop enough grass to qualify as four-footed lawn mowers and it makes them s--c-k!) We might also note that pets and human children who like to experiment should not be allowed near house plants, which are very often poisonous as diesfenbachia. Outdoors you can include such things as elephant ears and oleanders.

A doggy and his bone are considered very cute. Actually, a splintery bone can be very acute and painful. The nylon type bones are the safest — and they last longer too. Also, if you like both flora and fauna, try to find garden sprays that will not harm us. If you can't, then keep us out of the garden until it is safe. She says that many animals in other parts of the world have to eat what the family eats and that means not very much meat. They also may be sick all their lives and that's not fair. However, they can hunt for some things they need or scavenge. If we did that, we'd be chased off with a broom or buckshot. So, since you've civilized us, you must treat us in a civilized manner, which includes our annual examination by our doctor. That reminds us, hepatitis hurts many of us. Remember to get us shots for that. No, we cannot transmit it to humans, who have troubles of their own.

Earlier we mentioned our turtle, who also has an incubating egg. We're still waiting for you to write us and give them names. Remember we promised a nice prize for this; also we're tired of calling them Its and Its it.

Have made another fine new friend, Ferd, who is the English sheep dog friend of Kathy Peterson at the Monterey County Fair. Nice name "Ferd," pronounced "Furd" and probably meaning "furred." Remember also to go to the Fair and see all the lovely animals, particularly the horse show. (Pheemy was miffed because he couldn't enter as one).

Lost a good friend, Dr. Burleson's beautiful Dalmatian bitch, whom we reported struck down by a hit and run driver. We hope whoever did this is reading our column. To make our own quote "Who destroys one of us, diminishes us all." We could weep.

Be sure to write to us about your happy lives so we can smile again.

Dramatizing the free bus service for fairgoers again being offered this year from the Monterey County Fair and National Horse Show are George Wise (left), manager of the Fair, and Curt Sanders, manager of Bay Rapid Transit Co., Monterey. A schedule of the frequent bus service follows: Terminal is at the parking lot at Carmel High School. Bus will leave terminal, starting at 10:15 a.m., every 40 minutes until 9:35 p.m., with intersection stops. Route is west on Ocean Avenue to the library, then east on Ocean Avenue, along the regular bus route via Carpenter Street to Highway 1, then along Fremont and Mark Thomas Drive to the Fair, terminating at the Hunt Club gate. Buses will return at intervals.

CARMEL HIGHLANDS: A PEACEFUL PLACE
INTERESTING HOMES IN LOVELY, NATURAL SETTINGS

For a return to the quiet life in this troubled world, there's no better place than the Highlands, just five miles south of Carmel, with fire protection, community or public water, easy accessibility to all Peninsula shopping and recreation.

THIS OLD HOUSE

Was made for YOU if you like a two level home way at the end of a winding road. Originally a guest house of the old Peter Pan Lodge, this is a house with charm in all its nooks and corners. 3½ bedrooms, 1½ baths, and the price a nice low $39,000.

IDEAL "STARTER" HOME

in the same general area, but this one is modern styling, redwood exterior, vaulted ceilings, friendly fireplace, and a deck from which to enjoy the view on sunny days, picture windows for the cool, misty ones. Price only $34,500; excellent financing.

PERFECTION WAY UP ABOVE EVERYTHING

Looking down on exciting white-water views and verdant canyons, the most beautifully done, nearly new home we've offered anywnere at anything like the $80,000 price. Don't miss it if it's in your price range and you love seclusion.

ON THE OCEAN'S EDGE

Artist's home complete with studio, oriental decor. Beautiful walled entry court, and on the West: the ocean, and sculpture strictly by nature: tide pools, granite rocks, fabulous sea birds. Studio's perched right out on the rocks, vantage point par excellence for the great drama of the sea. Price $99,500.

Or if you can move up to $147,500, a contemporary also sitting on the edge of the ocean, with a heated, filtered swimming pool in a separate building. This is a great house; you've probably seen it featured in national magazines. May we show you?

ACROSS THE STREET FORM THE SEA

Guest house goes with this 3-bedroom home of redwood and stucco, shake roof, fine ocean views. Built especially for an artist's use, it would be great for the mother-in-law family, or one with teen agers. Priced at $69,500.

If 2 bedrooms and 2 baths are enough, for only $43,500 with good terms we can give you a sweeping view of water and coastline in a not-very-old home, 1400 square feet, shake roof, re-sawn Ponderosa pine interior.

All these homes have keys to the private comunity beach, another delightful attraction of this wonderful Highlands Area. Let us take you on an inspection tour — and we can include fine view sites from $12,500 to $20,000, too.

THE ORIGINAL OWNERS THOUGHT OF EVERYTHING!

FIRST: They chose a site with a woodsy (but sunny) outlook on a cul-de-sac location, planted a collection of conifers from all over California, and arranged to preserve the bird and wildlife that abounds in the area.

THEN: They planned their retirement home with the assistance of one of Carmel's finest architect-builder orginizations. Included were the many special features that represented their interests . . . a studio with flexible usage, a garage with ample room for a workshop, two bedrooms and two baths with plans available for a third bedroom, a country-type kitchen and dining area, a large living room with raised-hearth fireplace and glass doors, a stereo system that includes the studio, complete fencing and outdoor lighting.

AND THEN: They thought of a central vacuum system, electric garage doors with remote control and numerous other "personalized items".

AND NOW: They have listed the property for sale at a most realistic market value of $47,000.

TWO PROPERTIES THAT OFFER AN INCOME UNIT:

1. CARMEL POINT LOCATION: A "quality" home PLUS a spacious garden guest cottage. The main home comprises a delightful living room and dining area opening to a sunny deck with a view of the hills and the surf, two bedrooms, two baths and a kitchen with an enjoyable outlook. The separate cottage comprises living room with fireplace, picture window with garden view, bedroom and bath.
2. NORTH OF OCEAN LOCATION: Walking distance to Village shops, this two-level residential property offers comfortable living quarters for an owner and suitable unit for a business person. Expansive view from Point Lobos to Pescadero Point. Shown by appointment. $39,500.

CHARM . . . CHARM . . . CHARM! Exterior, interior and in every nook and corner, this storybook nearly-new home is a pleasure to show. Situated near the Village shops and the Cultural Center, this home requires no decorating or renovating for its new occupant. Driftwood paneled walls with rustic cathedral ceiling and a hospitable used-brick raised hearth, dining area with access to a deck with background of native trees and shrubs, a completely equipped kitchen with matching units, two bedrooms and two attractive baths. Seller has reduced the listing price to $39,500, far below replacement cost.

MAKE AN OFFER on this comfortable two-bedroom home in an area where the "natives" claim the temperature is ten degrees warmer than central Carmel. With a living room planned around a valuable live oak and a kitchen-dining area that can be separated easily and two bedrooms plus tiled bath, this property is ideal for a couple who value privacy in a quiet neighborhood. Now listed at $32,500.
